

Local Control Policy

Energy Opportunities supports having a direct relationship to the communities that we serve and the accountability that comes when senior leadership and stakeholders reside in the places they impact. Our owner and senior decision makers live within the communities where the firm and its activities are located and we do not support absentee management that is not personally connected to or vested in the community and the environment where it operates. Local control refers to managers, investors, senior executives, and shareholders who are accountable for the business and make important decisions affecting its sustainability as well as the ongoing economic well-being of their employees and the communities in which their businesses are located.
